5107.304 (c) -- Solicitation

All A-76 solicitations will be performance-based.

Every effort must be made to ensure that a truly complete and meaningful site visit is provided for prospective offerors, to include availability of personnel who are capable of answering questions as the tour progresses. Ensure that all questions posed during the solicitation period by both industry and the in-house workforce are treated with due respect and fully answered. A reasonable due diligence effort to each offeror, who requests it, must be provided. That includes, but is not limited to, allowing them to watch the current operation. Any such opportunities that are made available to one must be made available to all.

PARCs have the final authority over release of A-76 solicitations to industry and the responsibility for the quality of the contracting process. PARCs must ensure availability of clear guidance and develop a review process that results in uniform, quality solicitations and contracts. Minimizing variations in approach for similar services facilitates Government solicitation preparation time and increases competition by making it easier for industry to respond.
